What will YOU be doing in the future?

Time after time we have stopped and wondered what we will be doing several years from now. Will our hopes and dreams have come true?

Dreams; everyone should have them. No matter how small, dreams are very important. Sometimes these dreams seem impossible to achieve, but never say impossible! Doctors, lawyers, and even rock stars had to start somewhere. It's always nice to think, "I might be the next Bruce Springsteen!" or, "The first person to walk on Pluto!" Whatever your dreams might be, now is the time to start making them a reality. The bigger your dreams are, the brighter the future will be!

'What will YOU be doing in the future?' Let's jump ahead and find out!

1 — A sunset symbolizes the passing of a day and beginning of night.

2 — Kelli Ingram ponders over her future as a science teacher.

3 — Valerie Haskell and Kelly Sheehan model two of the fashions that they hope will someday be on display at their future clothing store — 'The Mortuary.'

4 — Matt Jenkins stands with the bicycle he hopes will someday help him win the Tour de France.

5 — Holly Horten practices steps as she prepares for her future as a Broadway dancer.

FUTURE DAYS!

"I'll be living in France," — Teresa Powell

"I'll be in law school studying to be a corporate lawyer," — Rick Biddenstadt

"I'll probably be making donuts somewhere!" — Alan Finn

"I will be the next up and coming Richard Nixon," — Daryl Knight

"I'll be a chemist or chemical engineer," — Stephen Hoy

"I want to be an airplane or car mechanic," — Larry Larsen

"In a few years I'll probably be an accountant," — John Jourde

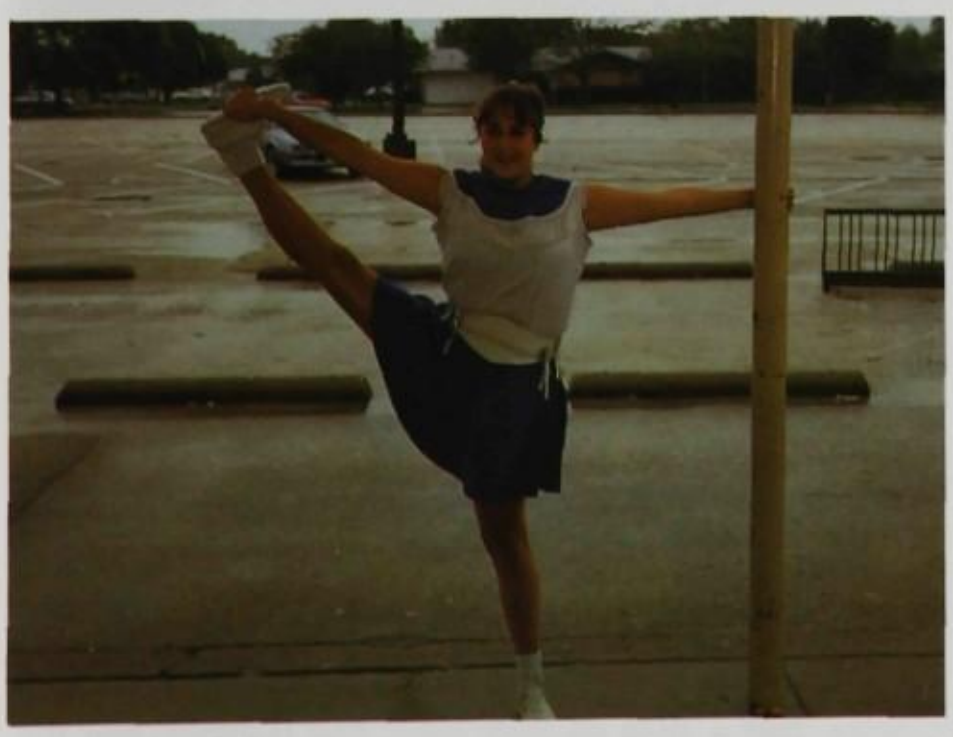
"In ten years I'll still be in college," — Shannon Cook

"In a few years I'll be accepting my first Oscar," — Adrian Traylor

"Either my band will be famous or I'll be studying in art school," — Travis Drake

"I would really like to be an architect," — Alisa Bowes

"Hopefully — probably — I'll still be in education," — Mr. Doug Damewood



5

1 — In Holly Horten's case, being fashionable can be a pain.

2 — Jodie Wenzel proudly shows off her high fashion footwear.

3 — Robin Ferguson, Terri Shumate, Melissa Duncan, and Joanna Fry find bright colors their biggest asset.

4 — Her long, fluted skirt, white satin blouse, and black boots complete only one of Tonja Abel's great looks.

Fashion Relapse

It always seemed as if fashions were constantly changing, but actually they only repeated themselves. The exact styles didn't come back, just different forms of the same fashions. For example: poodle skirts with lots of petticoats did not come back, but full skirts and bright colors did.

The fashion preferences in the 1986-87 school year at WHS differed greatly among the students. They could be categorized into four kinds: Punk, New Wave, Preppy, and traditional school spirit. The punk style was the most noticeable. The dominant color was black and hair was worn as bizarre as possible, usually standing on end. The punks sometimes wore combat boots and always long baggy shirts. Pants tended to be oversized, too. A mew trend happened to be black lipstick and eye makeup.

On the other side of the coin were the New Wavers. These people were affectionately nicknamed "trendies," too. They wore pastel pinks and yellows, with silver jewelry, lots of it, and long, full skirts. Lace socks and scarves were popular, the scarves worn in the hair and around the waists. The password, though, was "color."

A third group were the classic preppies. These guys and gals would always be "in fashion" because the preppy style would never die. Button down oxfords and sweaters with jeans or slacks were the name of the game, and footwear consisted of neutral flats, penny loafers, or tennis shoes.

The teachers and supervisors at WHS also had a special style of their own. They showed their school spirit by wearing the navy and white T-shirts with our school mascot boldly emblazoned on them. Students joined in by wearing Williams jackets. Jackets had names or even athletic numbers sewed on them. On Thursdays our school shone with spirit for the Warriors.

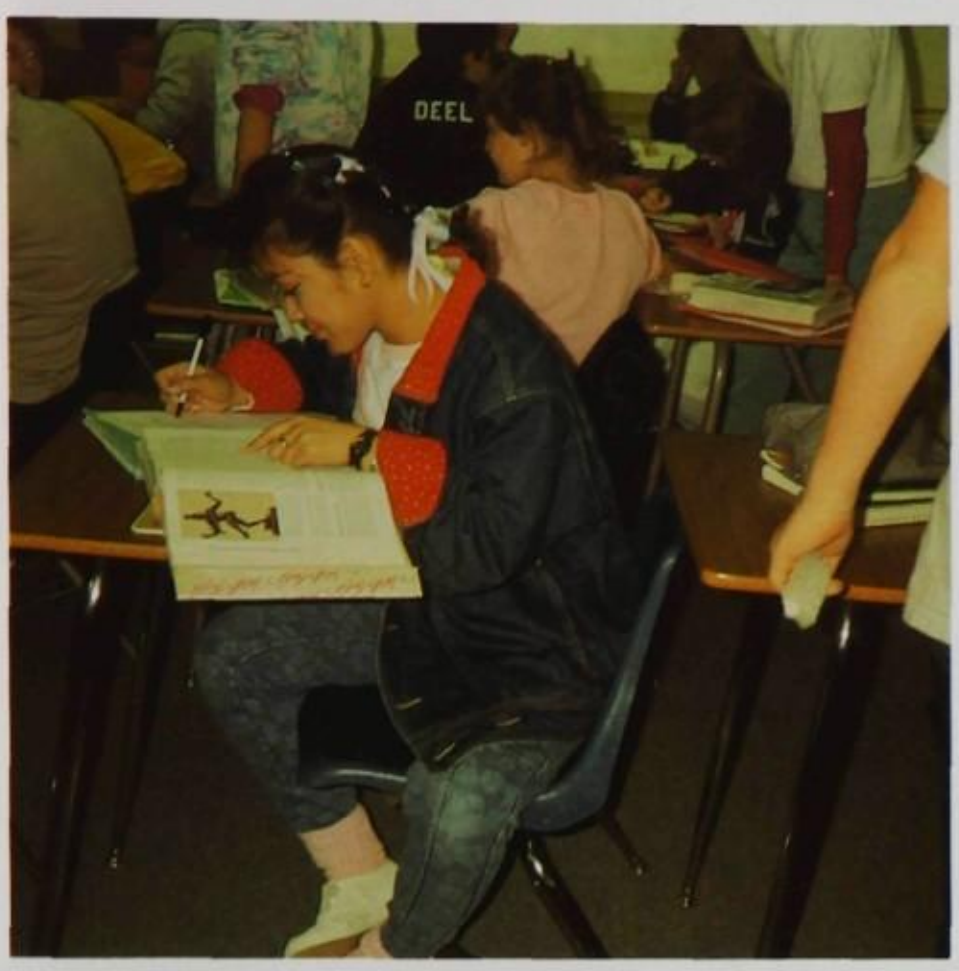
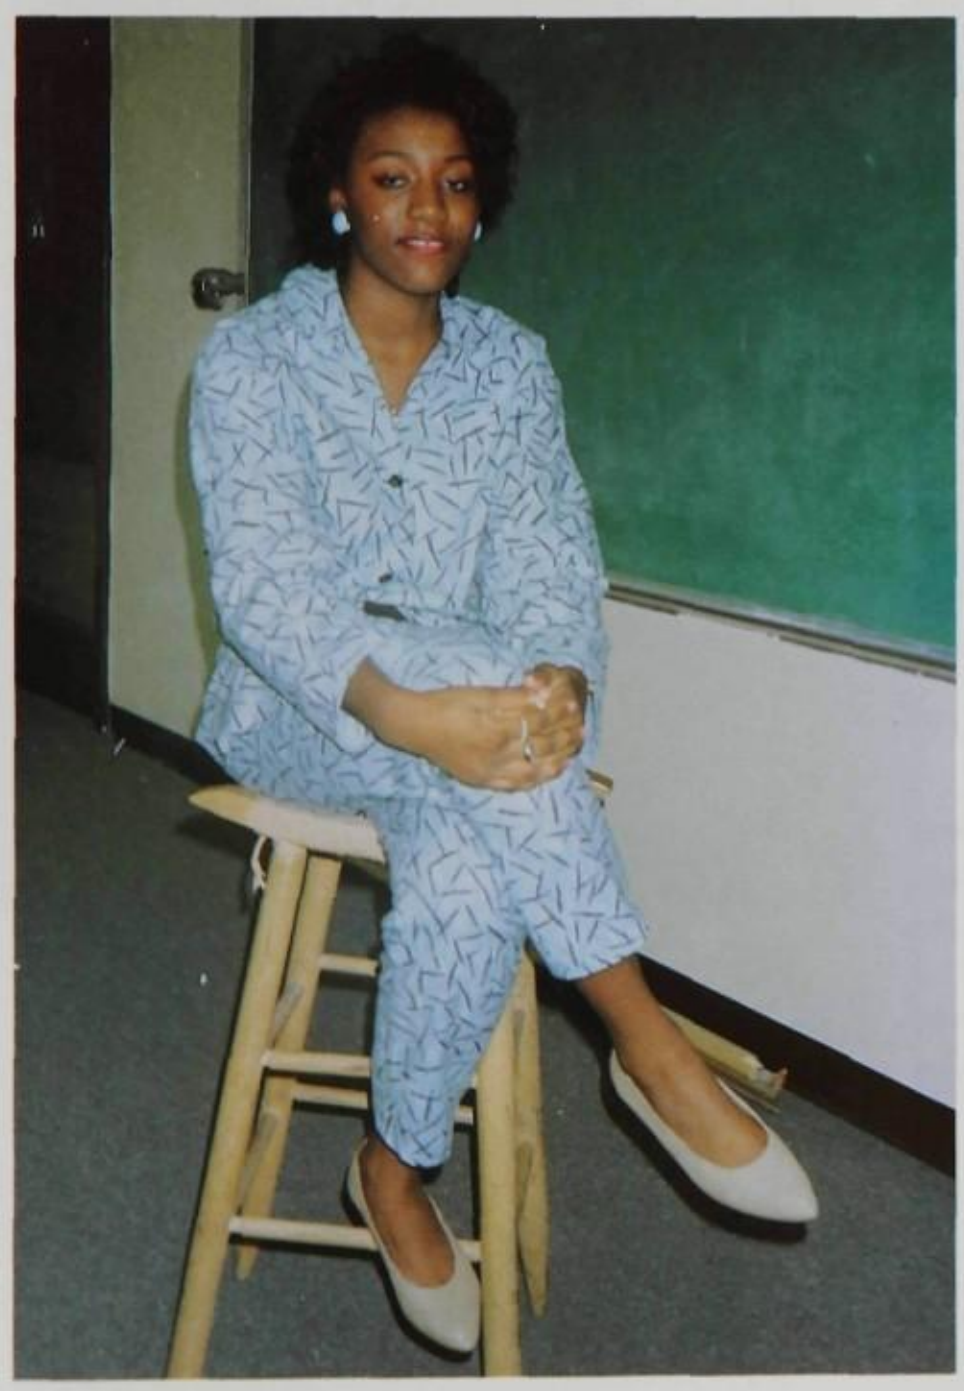
Hairstyles have changed somewhat since the fifties. Girls hair was cut short, the guys hair down to the shoulders. The trend was to bleach our tresses blonde, or dye them black, and make them stand on end with the use of hairspray.

Every person, no matter who they were or what they wore, had a style all their own. The fashions, like the personalities they represented, comprised "the look" of '86 and '87 at WHS.

A Stitch in Time



1



2

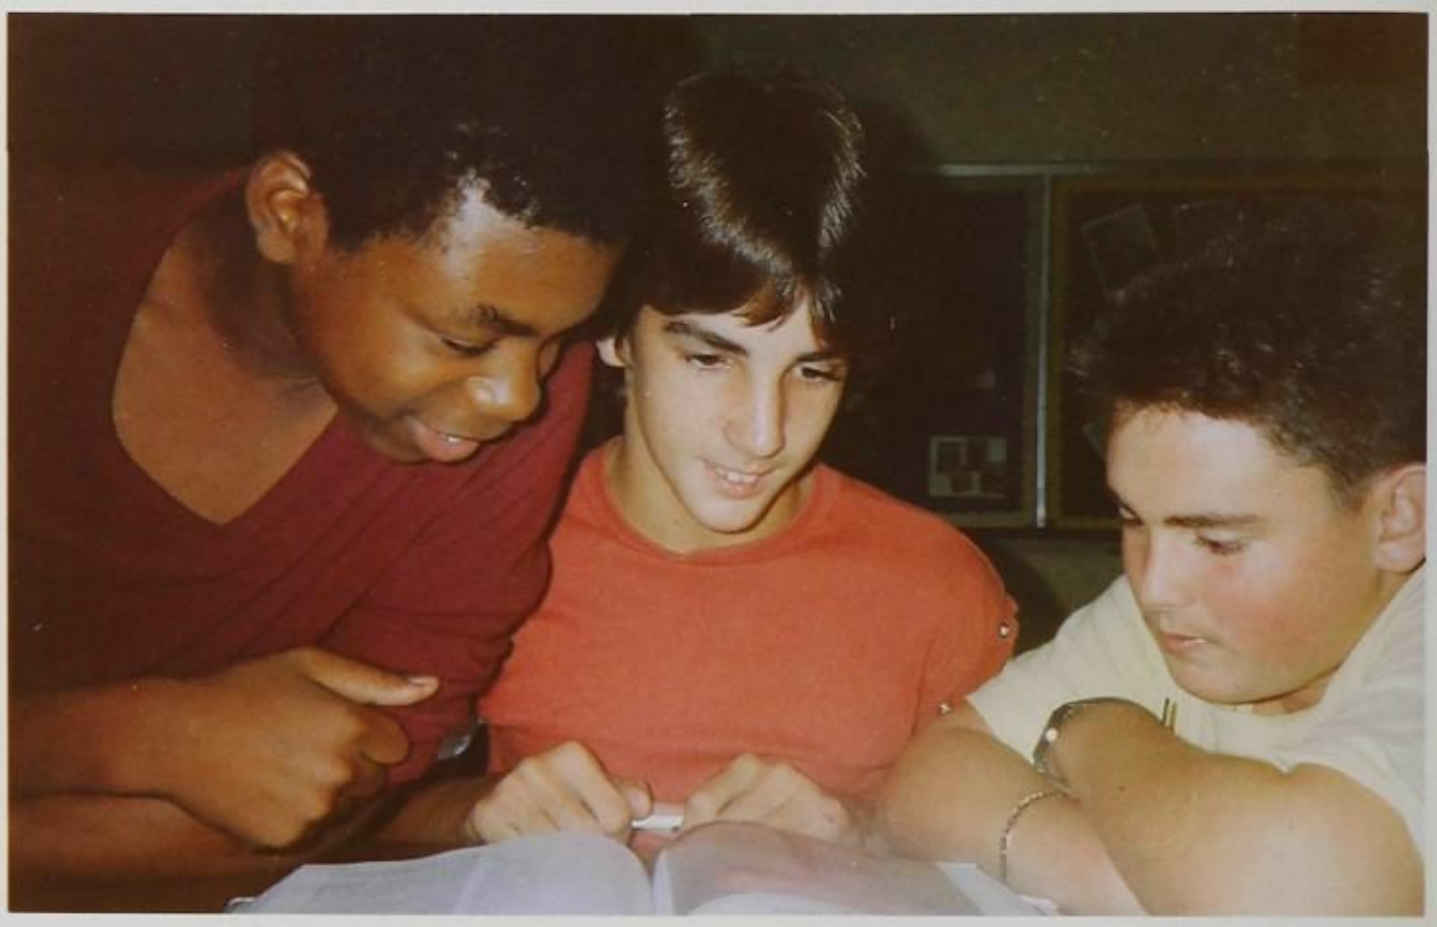
3

1 — Glizel Mercado has beauty and brains! Her World History doesn't seem to be bothering her.

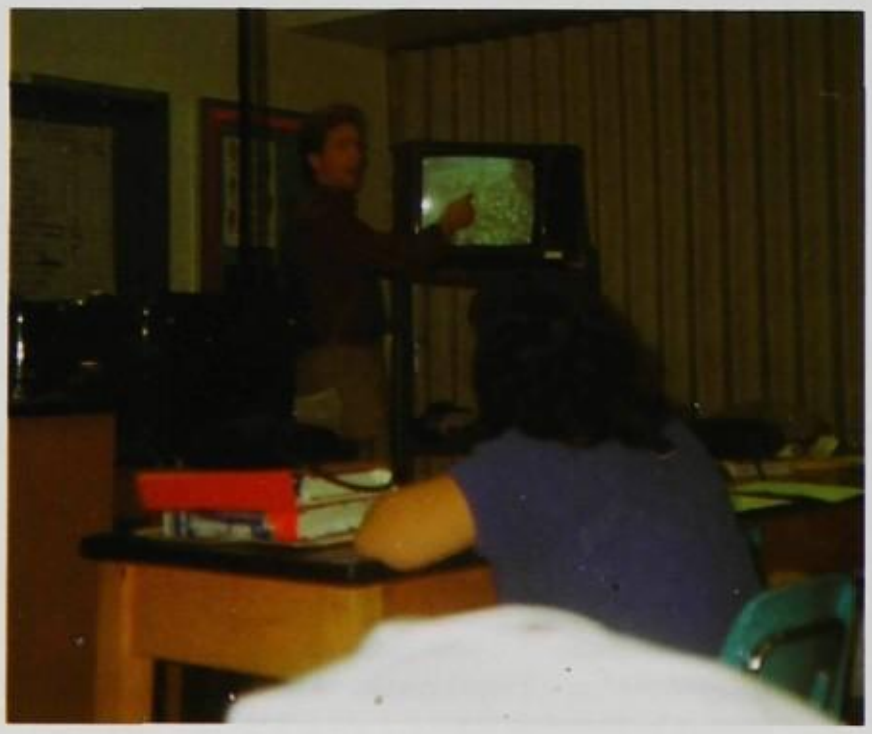
2 — Hairstyles of the Eighties: Kelli Tinsley wears hers down while Travis Drake prefers to add a few inches to his height.

3 — After cruising the halls in between classes, Tamela Wright leisurely awaits her next "brilliant idea!"

Learning: The Stepping Stone to Success



1



2

The Quest for Success

If anyone who attended Williams High School in 86-87 was asked what their experiences with academics were, they would include such adjectives as tough, challenging, and impossible. High academics achievement was found only by those who accepted the challenge and disciplined themselves in order to make good grades their top priority. Those who succeeded in their "quest for success" ended the year at Williams with the feeling of a job well done.

1 — David Richardson, Stacy Hatten, and Barry Coltrane put their heads together to answer a discussion question during American History.

3 — One of our teachers, Coach Mark Speck, explains the life of a protoza to his Biology class.

1

1 — Debbi Johnson and Chris Alexander find some hidden talent as they perform a skit for World History.

2 — Mrs. Briedwell is excited about this unit on essay writing. What about the class?

3 — Kristen White and Jill Palmer are enthusiastic about mold growth in Biology.

2

The Spirit Never Dies

1

1 — Vicki Opel, Stu Heinamen, Jason Lewis, Broderick Standberry, Allison Elias, Tara Hearlihy, Brea Burnham, and Mike Sheilds make Lisa DiRocco's 16th birthday very special.

2 — Jeff Petty describes a drill to the freshman basketball players during an afternoon practice.

3 — The freshman cheerleaders bow their heads in honor of Williams during a pep rally.

4 — The Williams high school band percussion practices their "special feature" after school.

2

3

4

1

2

3

1 — The sophomore football team prepares for a mid-evening game.

2 — Sophomore cheerleaders Carrie McGinnis, Michelle Windsor, and Wendy Davis touch up a routine before the game.

3 — Melissa Vaught, Krystal Wyatt, Amy Rutherford, and Patti Price perfect their flag routine to "Friends."

"When yelling is the right thing to do"

School spirit was shown throughout the halls, gym, and stadiums of Williams High School. Along with the cheerleaders, band, and drill team, the Warriors depended on those cheering crowds who went to support, to get excited, and to scream. Both students and teachers provided the support to boost the players' spirits whether they won or lost.

Friends Are Friends Forever

1 — Valerie Haskel and Kelly Sheehan catch up on "old times" between class.

2 — Joanna Fry and Shelly Mills share the good times, the bad times, and their make-up.

3 — Sara Spinks and Jenny Svoboda are more than happy to celebrate the beginning of a weekend.

4 — Esther Cochran entertains Christi Keith and Lisa Tucker with the latest gossip.

5 — Kristen Hamel, Kimi Heaney, Robin Ferguson, and Melissa Duncan show some spirit at a victorious football game.

6 — Mollie McGee, Judd Gibson, Steven Yates, Mike Wiegel, Patrice McLaughlan, and Robin Gordon, show one aspect of friendship during Biology class.

1

Friendship: The Essential Element

During the 86-87 school year, Williams students seemed to share a special bond. Whether they grew up together or just met this year, the friendships were just as special. Having a friend or even a special teacher to laugh with, to cry with, or just to have a good time with made for a better year. The good times seemed to beat out the sad because of friends, old and new. Warriors were greeted with a favorite quote that represented their attitude throughout the year. "There are no strangers here, just friends we have yet to meet."

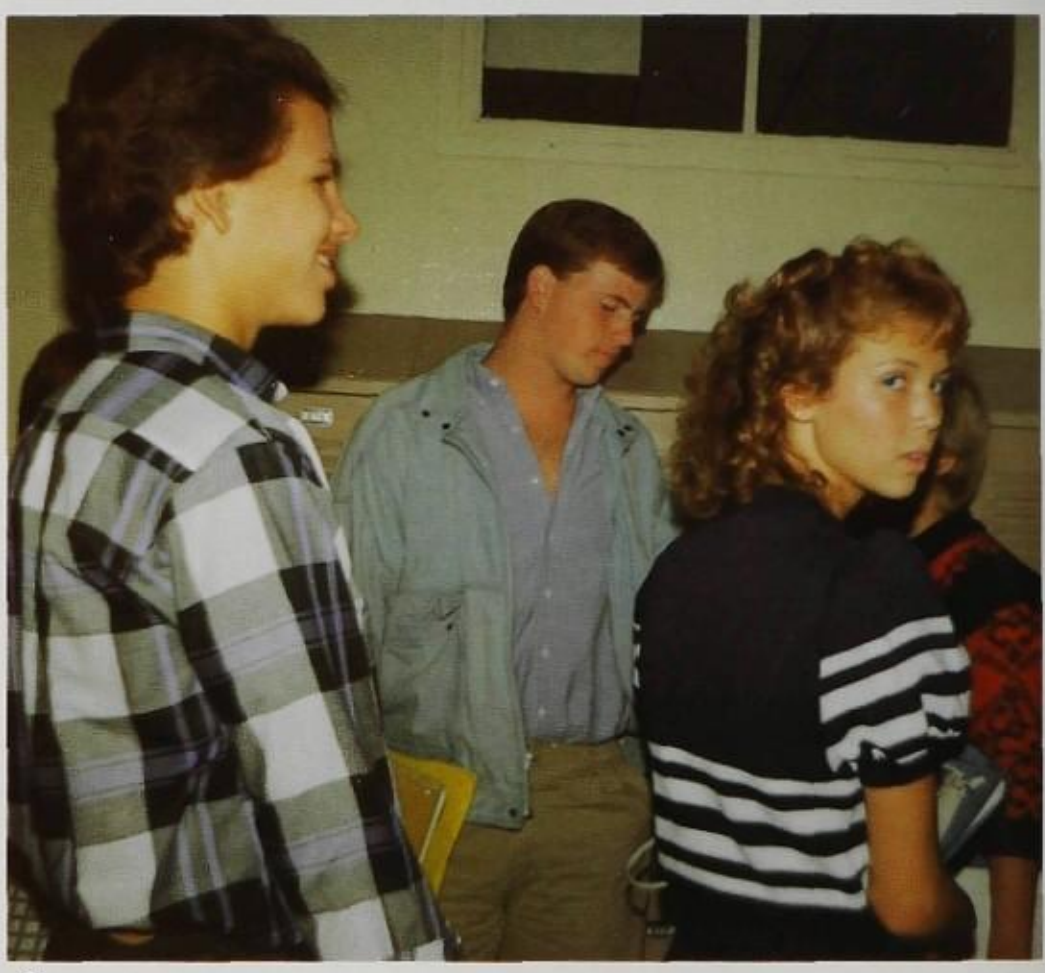
6

SOMETHING OLD . . .

1

2



3

1 — Melissa Duncan stops to take a breather between classes.

2 — Sophomore cheerleaders show their never-ending spirit after one of the exciting football games.

2 — Chris Alexander waits for a friend before school.

3 — Melissa Clark laughs at a comment a friend made.

Year to Remember With Sophomores

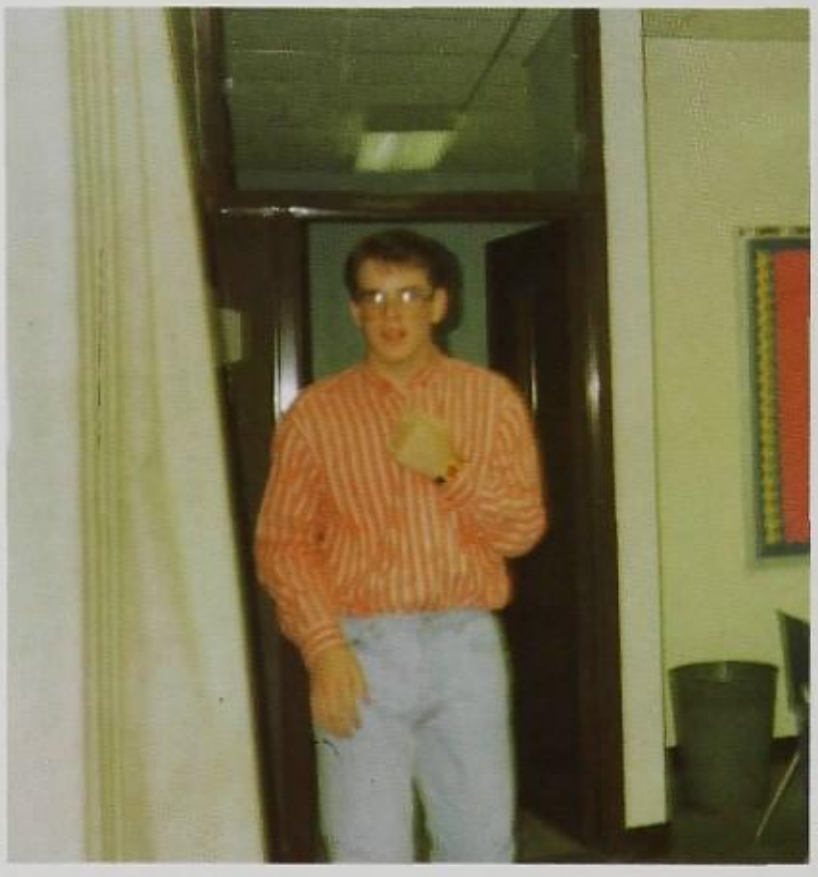
As we remembered our Sophomore year at WHS, we saw the good times and the bad. We recalled funny or embarrassing moments — such as slipping in the hall or dropping the lunch tray in front of everyone in the cafeteria. We met new friends but still 'hung around' the old ones. We were also reminded of the great feeling of winning the big football game or the fun brought on by pep rallies.

Many students had different perspectives of their Sophomore year. To some it meant little more than their last year at Williams. Others believed it was a rank giving them power over the Freshmen. Many perceived it as a title of honor associated with success. But just about all of us agreed, being a Sophomore at Williams H.S. is an experience to be long remembered!

1 — Lisa Hammel gets ready for her spectacular flying leap!

2 — Jonathon Briggs asks the universal question, "Who me?"
3 — Williams mascot, Delane Rose explains to Freshman football captains, Matt Whitehead and Tony Shaw the way to bring on the Williams spirit.
4 — Kim Williams, Candy Smith, and Randy Morris show that terrific smiles are always in fashion.

1



2

"READY FOR THE WORLD"

The 'something new' at the beginning of the 1986-87 school year were those novice Freshmen. September 2, 1986 was a challenging day for those who were new. Some arrived alone looking for a familiar face. Others came in groups believing strength came in numbers. They may have come in quiet as a lamb, but they left roaring like a lion ready to face a new world. A variety of nationalities and personalities were represented in this class, but all had a similiar goal: to graduate with the class of '90 with a diploma symbolizing knowledge, experience, and enjoyment.

. . . AND SOMETHING NEW

1

1 — Tracy Estrada attempts to futher her education by spending her free time in the question is: is she thinking about her school work?

2 — Chanin Denny and Christy Bretz attempt to finish last night's homework before school.

3 — Karen Sayers and Sandra Buntyn search the cafeteria endlessly for a place to sit and eat lunch.

2

3

TRADITION

1

"The Spirit Lives On"

The traditional feeling was here at Williams High School, it was in everything we did. Tradition wasn't just an act, but a way of thinking. Tradition wasn't only just a word, but a deep-seated emotion that kept Williams High School going. Yes Williams had traditions — that was a proven fact. The song that was played at every pep-rally; the blue and white uniforms for both band students and cheerleaders, and the spirit shown at every game that was played this year. All these things have helped contribute to the wonderful traditional spirit at W.H.S.

2

School Motto:

"Far better it is to take a chance to win glorious victory and triumph even though checkered by failure, than to take rank with those poor spirits who know no victory nor defeat because they live in the grey twilight and have tried neither."

1 — Mrs. Sharps, Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. Morris wear their school spirit.

2 — Alyce Wheeler and Deidra Clinton keep the tradition alive as becoming a part of the Cheyennes.

3 — The Cheyennes inspire the traditional feeling at every pep-rally.

Dance And Cheer

"Being a part of the Cheyannes holds a special place in each member's heart. It enables them to set goals, meet friends, and obtain self-discipline. It gives each girl confidence in herself and others. Drill team helps them achieve physical and mental standards. Cheyannes are a group of hard working girls that would not have been successful without the teamwork, discipline, and friendships they shared."

Glimpses of Entertainment at W.H.S.

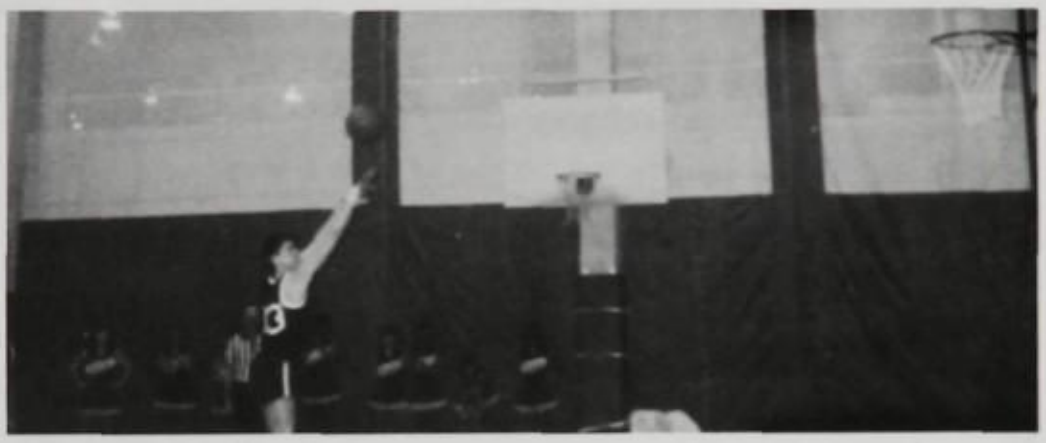
Sports are an important part of the lives of many high school students, for many reasons. In high school more and more people have boyfriends and girlfriends and need inexpensive places to go. What better place than Warrior sporting event to meet this need. Students have different sports to choose from all year round. In the fall and winter they could choose from football, volleyball, and basketball. Springtime brings track and baseball. All year long tennis, golf, swimming, and wrestling can be seen. Many students found this variety of sporting events an exciting alternative to television or expensive dates.

Warrior Talents



Olympic Spirit

While the average high school student is doing homework, going on dates, or attending school activities, Kim Leslie is training for or competing in Gymnastics. Since age 6, Kim has been competing, but not in sanctioned competition with the United States Gymnastics Federation (U.S.F.G.) until age 9. She has been competing on the Class I level, which is the highest level in age group competition, and has won numerous awards. Among these awards are State AA Champ (9-11 age group) 1981-1982, Regional AA Champ (9-11) 1982, Western National AA Champ (9-14) 1983, State AA Champ (12-14) 1984, Junior Olympic National Champ 1986, National Vaulting Champ 1986, Phillips 66 Invitational AA Champ 1986, and Pueblo Christmas Invitational AA Champ 1986.

In 1985, Kim was told she might not compete again due to an injury during a meet. She dislocated 4 bones in her foot, but was able to recover in time to win the National Championship in 1986. Coming back against the odds takes a winning spirit which Kim has. One day that spirit will take her to a Gold Medal in the Olympics. Good Luck, Kim!!!

Builders of Tomorrow

Industrial arts is an unusual but fun class. Certain projects are required to do. Two types of woods are used to make various types of cutting boards and clocks, some more complex than others. Simple tests are taken often from the books that they read from. Towards the end of the semester, the students come up with a bill of materials to make a project of their choice. In all, this class may have its ups and its downs, but it does have its rewards.

Experiencing With Community Needs, Personal Growth and Leadership Development

One of the best things about homemaking was learning skills designed to help you in everyday life such as getting along with your family and working with children. We learned about goal setting and decision making skills. The activities with children at Halloween, Christmas, and Easter were a lot of fun. We learned a lot about ourselves and children. We also learned how to be good consumers by planning, spending, and making smart buys in food, clothing, and housing. Homemaking prepared the students for everyday life in the home and the community around them.

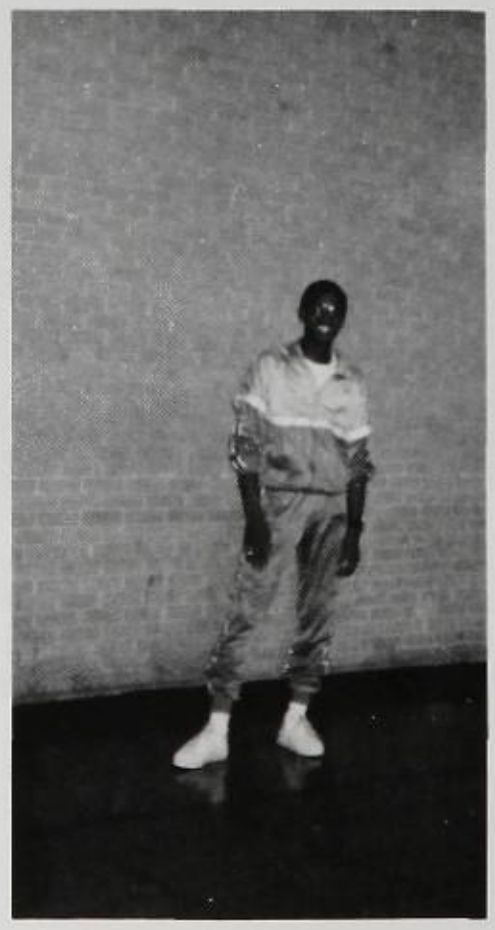
KEEPING OUR MINDS AND



Education For Good Health

Getting our minds and bodies in top condition is serious business. P.E. and health aid us in our long road to fitness. Although the nature of the classes is different, their end goal is the same. P.E. teaches coordination through aerobics, swimming, and softball. In volleyball, basketball, and hockey, skill and fair play are stressed. On the health agenda is bulimia, anorexia, and the effects of smoking to name a few. With the knowledge and physical fitness gained, we're ready to face the stresses of everyday life.

To find the answers to these questions, it would be wise for you to take a course such as biology, chemistry, or physical science. In biology, students learn several characteristics of human health, such as genetics, and human biochemistry. In chemistry, "The Gas Laws" and "Periodic Law" are taught. Students also learn to balance chemical equations. Finally, in physical science, subjects such as gamma rays and the basics of chemistry are taught. So if you ever wanted to know why you have blue eyes while both parents have brown, one of the above subjects just may be for you.

Imagination Is the Key

Many different works of art were created by students at W.H.S. Each student had a totally different outlook on the pictures. The mediums varied from pastels to pencil, to pen and ink. During ceramics, people let their emotions control their work. Students could show even more individuality with three dimensions. Art is a terrific class for students to relax and let their imaginations flow.

EXPRESS YOURSELF THROUGH ENGLISH

Students Gain an Appreciation for the Written Language

Honors English II students covered several topics during the course of the year. Short stories, literary essays, grammar, and assorted novels were all studied during the first semester. The second semester curriculum included poetry, the Arthurian Legends, and more novels such as My Name Is Asher Lev and The Once and Future King.

In English II, King Arthur, short stories, and grammar were studied, and a current events essay was written. During the second semester, Silas Marner was read, and some Shakespeare and poetry were studied. With the different varieties of literature studied, English, both honors and regular, proved itself an integral part of the school curriculum.

The Study of Ages Past Prepares

"Humanities II was combined with World History. In Humanities we studied the arts, architecture and cultures of various time periods. This year our Humanities went chronologically with our World History. Most of the time in History, we took the regular World History tests. A benefit of this was that we knew more about the subject. It was interesting to learn the extra tid-bits about certain cultures or people. To me the art was the most intriguing part of the class. Sometimes we had in depth studies on certain artists, their styles and their works. All in all, it was a fun class."

"At this point in a student's education it becomes necessary to plan for the future high school years. Many colleges ask that as an entrance requirement, each student takes two consecutive years of a foreign language. By taking a foreign language in high school, a student learns about the customs and culture of many countries. Getting involved in various foreign language clubs enables a student to go Christmas carolling, raise money for the club funds, and tutor students who have difficulty with the schoolwork. When I visited France (one day in Calais) this past summer, the knowledge that I acquired in the French classroom made me feel secure and confident. The use of French and English combined in sentences creates humor in the French Classes. Good luck because the best is yet to come. BONNE CHANCE!!!"

OF THE TIMES

In the News —

— Strained relations between the United States and Libyanian governments caused American 18 year old males to tune into the news to find out whether or not they would be drafted.

— Protesters against the testing of nuclear weapons were arrested in Nevada during January and February. Among those arrested were actor Martin Sheen and author/astronomer Carl Sagan.

— During the fall of '86, President Reagan met with Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachov in Iceland for a summit conference concerning nuclear weapons.

On the lighter side —

— More benefits such as Fashion Aid and Sport Aid were held to continue help for famine striken countries.

— In January, Amnesty International began arrangements for another possible 'Conspiracy Of Hope' tour; in helping to release those held prisoner in other countries.

— Government oriented films, 'Platoon' and 'Top Gun,' were number one box office smashes.

And the nominees are . . .

The Play of Daniel: A

Mene, Tekel, Peres

In February, the 10th grade world history class performed the Play of Daniel for the freshman American history class. Mike Arrendondo played the lead role of Daniel, who is called King Belshazzar (Ted Rothe) to interpret a mysterious phrase written on a wall by God. The king has Daniel clothed in royal garments for his service. Two envious advisors (played by Noelle Wall and Cara Cordner) try to talk the king out of his decision because Daniel worshipped other gods, and they are thrown into the lion's den for their efforts. The lion was well played by a convincing Scott Holloway, who had the audience shaking in their shoes with fright. In the end, Belshazzar is overthrown by Darious (Darwin Griffeth) and Daniel is saved from the ferocious lion by an angel of God (played by Krystl Wyatt). Mr. Chase didn't seem to like the ending, which had Krystl and the Herald Angel (Erika Ekvall) bringing the Divine Word of God: This is Aggie Land!

While Darwin Griffeth reigns over all, Scott Holloway, Krystl Wyatt, Mike Arredondo, Cara Cordner, Noelle Wall, and Chris Castaneda go on with rehearsals.

Adrian Traylor, as Belshazzar's prince began the play by explaining the entire performance.

The Herald Angel Erika Ekvall helps the ailing prophet (David Peck) to the throne of King Darious.

Four Star Performance

Krystl Wyatt and Erika Ekvall bring a surprise ending to the Daniel play.

Mr. Chase was not impressed with the Divine Word of God, needless to say.

The costumes of our two envious advisors, Noelle Wall and Cara Cordner, were enjoyed by all.

Our "raging" lion, Scott Holloway, had the audience scared stiff.
